ABOUT ME

I am a Software Engineer specializing in native Android development, with a strong focus on building stable, scalable, and crash-free mobile applications. I am passionate about Quality Engineering and creating reliable Android apps with robust local data persistence, seamless offline functionality, and predictable user experiences. I have hands-on experience in developing practical mobile solutions and continuously improving app performance, reliability, and overall code quality.
Beyond code, I am deeply committed to community service and leadership. As the President of the Blood Donation Society at my university, I have led teams to organize critical health awareness drives and digitized vital medical community records.
